

Instructions for Viewing Messages Encrypted with Microsoft Outlook Encryptions.

Your encrypted email message will appear similar to this. As stated in the message, opening the “message.html” attachment will present instructions for opening the message.

The instructions offer the option to sign in with the displayed email address (which will require it be associated with a Microsoft account) or the opportunity to “Get a one-time passcode to view the message”.

Hover over the “Don’t want to sign in? Get a one-time passcode to view the message.” link, and open the link.

You will be presented with this page that instructs you to check your email for the passcode you requested.
